

UNC Charlotte Psychology: Study Abroad in Lancaster, UK!!

World-wide university partnerships offered by UNC Charlotte's Office of Education Abroad <https://edabroad.uncc.edu/> can introduce you to locations and experiences well beyond the walls of Colvard. Studying abroad is a wonderful opportunity to engage with a different culture and benefit from the resources of another educational institution. Many institutions abroad offer excellent psychology courses, consider taking some required psychology courses and classes on topics different from those available at UNC Charlotte. Study abroad can easily fit into your academic plan by visiting the Office of Education Abroad to select an international program, meeting with your psychology advisor to decide on the best time to go and the classes to take, and consulting with the Office of Student Financial Aid <http://finaid.uncc.edu/> to make the opportunity affordable. Learn about yourself, learn about psychology, and learn about the world by participating in study abroad!

Three miles from the Atlantic coast and set amidst valleys and forest, students attending Lancaster University enjoy an idyllic locale to study abroad. Identifying as stewards of their beautiful surroundings, the University community engages in a number of sustainability initiatives and encourages student involvement on campus and within the local community. In addition, Lancaster is brimming with culture, hosting some of the best-known and respected UK and international artists in numerous public programs of professional theatre, dance, exhibitions and concerts.
